Hongrone, August 13th, 1908

From India to China for a quarter of a century or more the need for the registration of Native partnerships has been voiced and frequently considered with a view to the enactment_of legislation, but neither in India, in the Straits Settlements nor in Hongkong has any satisfactory basis for legislation yet been agreed upon, and the the news at all. respective Governments have been obliged to let the matter remain in abeyance. Some years ago the Government of Hongkong practicability of a measure of this nature, and evidence revealed that most divergent views were entertained by leading business men as to the value of such legislation. Some of the witnesses were strongly of opinion that an ordinance requiring the compulsory registration of Chinese partnerships would have a disastrous effect on the business prosperity of the port and these views were held to to be declined, -outweigh all other considerations on the subject. Not more than about two years ago the Government of the Straits Settlements, drew up a Bill and referred it to a for consideration, and in the end had to abandon the Bill. In question of providing by legislation for the recistration of native partnerships has been under consideration at various times within the last forty years, and the Indian Government, which has just made another attempt at legislation on the subject, still finds itself unable to frame a satisfactory Bill. The Government of India fully recognise that "there has been a general and continued demand for legislation on this subject and are quite prepared to consider proposals for legis lation." They believe however that it wil be readily admitted that they cannot move in the matter until the several Chambers of Commerce in India are in closer agreement as to their precise requirements, nor until it is conclusively shown that the difficulties with which the matter is beset can be satisfactorily overcome. The Bombay Chamber has been conspicuous in its opposition to the tentative proposals put forward, but continued discussion on the proposals in dispute, may finally result i some practical legislation for India. Complex as the question is in India, the difficulties in the way of such legislation in Colonies like Hongkong and the Straits Settlements—nre much greater, and in both Colonies the prospect of putting on the Statute Book an Ordinance providing for the registration of Chinese partnerships must be considered remote. In legislation of this kind the object aimed at is prevention of fraud. That flagrant cases of fraud on the part of Chinese firms are sometimes disclosed in the Bankruptcy | relatives. Courts both here and in Singapore cannot be denied, but it is very much open to doubt whether any legislation providing for the effectually put a stop to cases of the kind There can be no doubt that, if an official it would be of great advantage to Foreign | yesterday, firms having business relations with Native firms, and the work of the Courts would doubtless in many cases be greatly facilitated. But without striking a serious blow at trade it would be impossible to shut the door against fraud. The registration of persons resident in Chioa as partners in a firm doing business in the Colony-such | amount (Yen 6:00,00)) of the Yokohama comregistration cannot well be prevented -would pany's capital. keep the door always open and the Chinese objections which were made to the proposed legislation at Singapore a couple of veurs ago rather suggested that legislation of this kind might have the effect of increasing fraud by the fraudulent registration as partners of persons resident in China. The object of the Ordinance would thus be defeated while the persons whose names had been fraudulently registered might be put to great hardship and inconvenience. Since the complexity of the problem has been shown the subject has ceased to possess little more than academic in crest for Hongkong, but should the Government of India succeed in framing a Bill acceptable to the whole of the Chambers of Commerce in India, the Far Eastern Crow

THE PORT OF VANCOUVER.

A largely attended and enthusiastic public meeting was held in the City Hall, Vancouver last month to discuss the new proposal that Vancouver should be made a free port. The Mayor presided. A resolution was unanimously passed oppointing a committee "to obtain a available information as to the probable effects on local trade and industry " should the plan be adopted. It appears to be the general opinion the arguments which are being advanced in favour of making Montreal a free port apply "as well, if not better, to Vancouver."

LARGE WINDFALLS.

A remantic story of a big windfall comes from Sunderland. A poor Durham miner, named Ernest Barnett Douglass, who lives at Wingate, in the heart of the colliery district has just been informed that he is entitled to a fortune of no less than £100,000. The money was left by a certain William Dawson Barnet who besides being interested in a successful gold mine held shares in several industrial concerns. On his death in London about two years ago he bequeathed the whole of his fortune to his great nephew, but efforts to trace the heir failed, and the money went into Chancery. A Sunderland firm of solicitors have, however, succeeded in establishing the fact that Ernest Barnett Are Dauglass, of Wingste, is the grand-nephew $2000.

mentioned in the will. Douglass at present comples an unpretentions cottage in a street near Wingate Collery, where he formerly worked as a shifter. He has not worked, however, since the Wingate Colliery disaster, two years ago, owing to ill-health. and he and his wife and family have been in very straitened circumstances, having to apply for parish relief.

Two of Douglass's mates were killed in the Wingate disaster, and he would probably have shared their fate but for the fact that he was apprehensive of something occurring and stayed at home, although he had his working

Another romance of fortune is reported, this time from Lincolnshire. A little boy. named Jack Nowell, the eight-years old son o Mr. G. H. Nowell, a solicitor, of Barton-onthe-Humber, has been informed that he is heir to a fortune of £200,000, the testator being Mr. John Wadding, of Chaltenham. Waddington was a consin of Alderman Tombleson, of Barton, whose daughter is the wife of Mr. Nowell. The estate is value at £205,000, and, with the exception of your legacies of £1,000 Nowell unexpectedly becomes entitled to the whole of the estate on the death of Mrs. Waddington. A condition of the will is that Nowell adopts the name of Waddington.

GERMAN EMIGRATION

A REMARKABLE DECREASE. If the rise or fall in the volume of emigration may be taken to represent the state of employ ment and the general well being of the working classes of a country, then the German Empire ought to be particularly flourishing in both respects at this moment, says the London Globe's Berlin correspondent, seeing that there has been a remarkable fall in the volume of emigration from the ports of Hamburg and Bremen during the first six-months of the present year. During the first six months of fast year no fewer than 111317 emigrants sailed from Hamburg; this year the number was only 29.810. From Bremen there sailed 130.636 persons in the half-year ending with June, 1907: this year the number has faller to 25.47! emigrants. Of course, many of these emigrants are always Russians and Poles, and as the desire to escape to new homes across the Atlantic shows no falling off on the part of Russians and Poles, the falling-off must have been almost entirely on the part of emigrants from Germany. While from the two ports mentioned there sailed 241,713 persons in the six months ending with June, 1907, there have sailed only 55,285 emigrants in the first half of protection of Turkish subjects in China had 1908. THE TYPHOON SHELTER.

The Straits Times on the strength of a telegraphic summary, devotes a leader to the discussion at the Hongkong Legislative Council last Thursday. It remarks: The Governor has carried out his intention, and shipping will have to bear the cost of the new work. The smaller charge on river steamers is explained by the more frequent arrivals of these vessels and the think, as the Shipping Firms alleged would be the case, that ocean-going steamers will avoid Hongkong because of the increased charge for light dues. This is an old bogey which is raised whenever there is the likelihood of Government endeavouring to make shipping detachments of the Foreign Legion. Four pay something towards the cost of the upkeep of a port. Hongkong's position is far too secure, both as a terminal port, and port of call, to be endingered by the present addilikely to desert Hongkong for Manila or Shanghai, for reasons that ought to be obvious to the shipping people themselves. The recent disastrous typhoon has shown the folly of delaying the constructional work at Mongkok-tsui, and Sir Frederick Lugard is to be commended on displaying decision in the matter. We can only express the hope that Hongkong's improvements may not be crippled by the illconsidered moddling of the anti-opium party. in England. With its ordinary and principal sources of revenue destroyed by that party, there is a danger that the necessary public works of the Colony, aiready hindered by the excessive military contribution, will have to

LOCAL SPORT

INTERPORT POLO.

HONGKONG DEFEAT SHANGHAL It was a pleasant " at home" that the Polo Club provided for their friends at Causeway Bay yesterday afternoon, and the invitation they extended was availed of by a large number, the borders of the ground being lined by enthusiastic spectators. His Excellency the Governor was present, also the Hon. Mr. F. H. May, Colonial Secretary, and many other prominent citizens. The band of the Middlesez regiment provided music during the afternoon and the guests were supplied with tea and light refreshments by members of the Club.

The feature of the afternoon was the interport polo match, a hard fought game which ended in favour of the home team. visitors, however, were at a disadvantage, their ponies not being in the best of condition, the result being that in the last chukka two of the Colonel Bruce, who played an excellent game for the visitors, then succeeded in scoring a goal for Shanghai. He followed up his success with another splendid run along the wing and a pass to Mr. Burkill, which the latter player took and put the Shanghai. landers two up. Colonel Bruce made another attempt at goal shortly afterwards, but was unsuccessful, and the Hongkong team took charge of the ball, carrying it to their opponents' goal. Here Lieutenant Large took an easy shot and added another goal to Hong. kong's score. A second attempt was sto pped by Dr. Keylock, but the ubiquitous Lieutenant was not to be baulked and in quick succession placed another two goals to the credit of Hongkong. Before the close of the quarter Lieutenant Dixon had added another.

During the first half of the game the visitors' play lacked combination, but in the third chukka this defect was remedied, the result being a much more successful quarter. Colonel Bruce succeeded in evading two Hongkong players and notched a goal for Shanghai. - Another lucky one was added to their score by Mr. Davies, the ball dribbling through the posts before any of the Hongkong team could reach it Some sharp play followed in midfield and the Lieutenant Dixon placed another to the credit of Hongkong. The score was again supplemented by Lieutenant Webb-Bowen who notched a goal after a very good run across the field.

The fourth and final chukka was remarkable for the number of misses made at intervals. Shortly after the start Colonel Bruce added another to the score of the visitors. Then the excellent passing game played by Lieutenants Large and Dixon culminated in another goal for Hongkong, the latter player driving the ball between the posts. The combined play of the visitors carried the ball towards the local goal, and Colonel Bruce was again successful in Booxing.

Final: Hongkong, 11; Shanghai, 6 goals. Major-General Broadwood and Captain Wait fulfilled the duties of umpires to the satisfaction of all concerned.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR the presented the winners with the Cup, and in doing so congratulated them on their victory. Cheers, followed for his Excellency, the visitors, the ladies and the Hongkong Pol

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

12th August. FLOOD FUND BARAAB.

The Chinese community here are displaying great activity in the promotion of a Flood Eund Bazaar which promises to be a great success. A large matched is being constructed on the Tap Size ground, and in this will be contained the numerous stalls from which it is hoped to realise a substantial sum for the relief of the sufferers by the flood. The Barner was to have been opened on Enturday, but the matshed will not be completed by that day. The Chinese in the surrounding villages have responded liberally to the appeal for articles for sale, and it is expected that there will be a great display on the opening day of the Bazzar.

And while such neferious tasks can be accomplished with success; and with apparently little risk, the public have a right to ask-What are the police doing? The audacity of this robbery will be readily understood when I say that day and night two sentries are stationed within a stone's throw of this building. One patrols at the Fazenda and the other at the Galls And yet the thieves were successful in carrying off the booty. The dilatoriness of officialdom in these circumstances is a shame and a disgrace.

THE RUSSIAN SEIZURE OF A-JAPANESE VESSEL

From further news to hand regarding the 'Mie Maru" affair, it appears that the Japanese Government issued instruction to the Japanese Charge d'Affaires in St. Petersburg, ordering him to lodge a protest with the Russian Government against the death sentence passed on the six Japanese belonging to the crew of the "Mie Maru." The Russian Vice-Minister for Foreign Affairs (the Minister being absent from the capital) replied that nothing had been heard by the-Government at St. Petersourg of the matter. Inquiries, however would be made at once of the local authorities and a reply would be given to the protest of the Japanese Government. Representations were also made to the Governor-General of the Amur district, through Mr. Nomura, Japanese Consulate Viadivostok, and the Governor-General replied that a sentence once delivered could not be rescinded. It is, however, believed in Tokyo that this reply of the Governor-General was made before he had received instructions from the St. Petersburg Government. A Tokyo message states that it is held to be certain that the Russians would be acting unlawfully in executing the Japanese fichermen who were concerned in the affray which arose opt of the capture of the "Mie Maru." In 1891 the British sailing vessel James Hollies (F was captured by Russians at a point about 10 miles off Kommandorsky, and three British whalers were seized by Russians in the following year at the same place. Negotiations were opened between Great Britain and Russia concerning these seizures and the question was submitted to The Hague Arbitration Court in 1900. The affair was dealt with by a tribunal over which Dr. Russell presided and judgment was given in 1902 to the effect that the scene of the seizures was more than three miles from the coast and consequently is the open ses, so that the Russians were not entitled to capture the vessels. The Russian Government was therefore ordered to pay compensation to the English subjects concerned. Since that date, the British Government has issued orders that British subjects are not to approach close to Kommandorsky, but that does not affect Japanese. At the time when the "Mie Maru" was captured, the Captain of the Japanese warship "Hiei" made representations to the Russian officers concerned and obtained from them a written statement to the effect that the place where the seizure was made was miles from the coast. That statement, it is held at Tokyo, makes it clear that the Russians had no right to capture the vessel,—" Kobe Herald."

Itching, Bleeding Humour Spread Over Child's Limbs - Different Ointments Brought No Relief-Grew Steadily Worse—Could Not Go to School for Two Months.

AWFUL DISEASE WAS CURED BY CUTICURA

"About December of last year, my little girl, ago five years, had red, itching places under her knees, right in the bend of the legs, which we thought was chaps caused by the frost. The disease spread up both legs and then into her arms. They used to irritate and bleed. We had to keep her away from school two months. We then took her to a doctor who said it was a bad case of eczema. He gave me different sorts of cintments and lint to bind them up with but it did no good and it kept getting worse. I read of the wonderful Cuticura Remedies and thought I would like to give them to trial, which I am pleased to think I did I sent for the Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Pills, and after using them-the second or third time. they gave her great relief, and after using the complete set, she seemed completely cured. I am thankful to say, and I shall recommend the Cuticura Remedies to all I know suffering from such an awful disease as my girl did for five months. CUTICURA CURED Pimples on Back and Chest. "About fifteen months ago I noticed which gradually spread over the chest and back. I tried several remedies but none seemed to do me much good. At last I decided to try the Cuticura Remedies with the result that a single set effected a complete cure. My skin is quite clear and white with no sign of anything having been there. LORD ROSEBERY ON THE

NEED OF COMPARISON. As president of the Society of Comparative Legislation, Lord Rosebery presided at the annual meeting of that body at the hall of the Law Society, Chancery-lane, and previous to an address by Sir Courtenay Ilbert on "The Work and Prospects of the Society," the chairman paid a high tribute to the value of the work which the society is doing. Lord Rosebery, who was received with cheers, said: I wished to be here to-day to testify my very high appreciation of the work which this society has done and is doing. (Cheers.) It is one of the very few sociaties in the world that I am acquainted with which one can praise unstintedly and absolutely without reservation. In fact, its work seems so necessary in these days of superabundant legislation that it seems marvellous that it should be left to a private society to do what it does. Now, the first work, and, in my opinion, the practically important work of the society, is to give a full and accurate summary of each year's legislation in the British Empire, the United States, and foreign countries, . Now, consider what a work that is. There are, I believe, sixty Legislatures within the British Empire itself; there are some fifty Legislatures in the United States. And besides, there are the various Legislatures of Europe; in the Austrian Empire alone there are certainly more than a dozen. All these Legislatures, more especially our own, going full steam shead, produce almost the greatest possible number of Acts of Parliament in a year. For instance, in the year 1906 there were no less than 2,000 laws and ordinances passed within the British Empire, of which probably 99 per cent, were curtailments or infringements of the liberty of the subjects. (Laughter.) Well, what stupendous task that is, gentlemen, and how it certainly teaches, as from a text, the necessity of such a society as this.

HUGE OUTPUT OF LAWS. This society alone, of all human agencies garners up this buge output of laws, which is deemed necessary for the welfare of the human race. And I think in this respect we have to remember that no Parliament is, to my knowledge, half so active as our own in this work. A Ministry now, to whatever party it may belong, reckons its Acts of Parliament at the end of a session as sportsmen recken their bag The laws are presumably good from their point of view. But from the point of view of those who are affected by them they seem enormously numerous. And you must remember also that these laws are passed in the main without any give, adequate discussion to so many laws as are passed by our Legislature, and, indeed, so far from having discussion facilitated upon them every means is employed, legitimate or illegitimate, according to the point of view from which you regard them, to restrict and suffocate discussion of all these legislative proceedings, Now I venture to say that in all these circum stances a society of comparative legislation is one of the first necessities for those serious people who want to watch the general course of humanity, and who also want to have an idea of the laws that are passed with regard to them. selves. But there is a second point on which I would lay emphasis. And it is this: In former days I do not think such a society was so much required as it is now. We were then living under what I may call the era of emancipation. The object was to strike off restriction. We were freeing the Jews, we were freeing the Roman Catholics, we were freeing the municipalities, we were freeing the universities, Everywhere our task was one of enlarging the boundaries of freedom. That task has in the main, been accomplished, and we have passed, as has often been observed, into an era much more difficult, much more fortile of stumbling blocks, much more full of portion of the laws that are passed now the author of a generalization which

Now it seems legislation more or affects more than the external guise of the worthy of Plato's republic than of practical root ideas which some suppose in danger of parliaments, but whether that be so or no, being swept away. Tennyson expressed at once we know, or shall know, from the work a serener faith and a truer scientific attitudewhich is being done in Michigan whether it has any effect at all, good or bad. These are all the examples that I have time or competence to give you to day with regard to the work which this Society is doing. -In these days, when the State undertakes so much, I venture to say that there are many national branches of expenditure which are not nearly so useful as that involved in the society in whose name we are assembled to-day. That that is recognised is shown by the fact that some of the outer Britains-what used to be called the Colonies -- are begining to contribute to our society as recognising the vast utility of its work. Not merely in the society not State sustained but the whole of this arduous work contained in these volumes is done absolutely gratuitiously; neither the editor nor the secretary nor the contributors receive any pay ment whatever for this priceless work. And think, therefore, that I am entitled to ask you, some even beyond this ball, to give in the future their earnest support to the work of this most iseful and valuable society. (Chesra).

THE JUBILEE OF DARWINISM

Special interest, the T mes remarks, attaches to the meeting of the Linneau Society of London held to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the great joint communication by Charles Darwin and Alfred Russel Wallage on the variation of species under natural selection. For although Darwin passed away in 1812, Dr. Wallace was present to receive the special medal of the Bociety-receiving back what is his own, as the President happily put it—while the veteran Sir Joseph Hooker also took part in the preceedings and related how Darwin had communicated to him his great idea long before Dr. Wallace independently thought it onthand what trouble he had to prevent Darwin from incontinently abandoning all claim to originality. Both men adequate discussion, because it is impossible to were entirely original, and all the world knows how generously each discoverer strove to secure full recognition for the claims of the other. would be better for science and for the world if the example they set in that respect were as much regarded as they theory they jointly promulgated. Their treatment of one another's claims is a standing rebuke to the mean jealousies that too often distigure scientific intercourse at the present day, and to the eagur desire to secure priority which frequently leads to the publication of crude conceptions and dubious results. Perhaps the most interest. ing thing in the proceedings was the account given by Dr. Wallace of the manner in which both he and Darwin arrived at an illuminating idea, and of the different procedure rollowed by the two discoverers. With charming modesty Dr. Wallace declared that only a singular piece of good luck gave him any share whatever in the discovery. Darwin had hit upon it twenty years earlier, and communicated it in confidence to one or two particular friends. But he would not publish his idea until he had accumulated a great store of observations and had pondered deeply upon them. It was only after twenty years of labour that he thought his idea sufficiently buttressed by facts to be laid before the stumbling-blocks-the era of construction. scientific world. There are, the Straits Times says, several hunfreds of golfers in Singapore -mostly duffers.

GOLF AT SINGAPORE

In the first flight, we have about half-a-dozen who are able to hold their own with the best amateurs in England, Scotland or Ireland; then come a few who are slightly above medicority, and last of all the great army of duffers, with handicaps ranging from 12 to 24, or who are beyond the possibilities of such mundane affairs as handicaps. Our better players make periodic visits to the Mother Country and shine in the Ermament of the Amateur Championship. They survive a few rounds, and are then outshone in brilliancy by a John Ball, a John L. Low or a Lassen, and have to await their return to Singapore to recover their radiance as bright particular stars. But the majority of us, bicause of our native modesty, seldom attain the honour of getting through the first round of the Championship, and are content to put in a fair new score for the monthly medal at some obscure watering place. To the golfer, however, all things are possible. No sportsman, not even the follower of Isaak Walton, has such a large reserve force of hope. Buoyed up by a Sat the first green, he is lured on to emulate Braid and Vardon, and does fairly well in regard to score until, in an evil hour, he meets the candid friend who is his undoing. He soon learns that his style is absolutely wrong in every particularstance, grip, swing, all bad. From that moment he is doomed. It endeavouring to emulate his amateur tutor, he violates every canon of style in golf, sinks deeper and deeper in the bunker of despair, and finally takes his place definitely and irretrievably in the ranks of the duffers. With so many golfers here anxious to improve their gam and to obtain something more than an elementary ides of the theory, and with a steady addition to the ranks of players, it has been suggested to us to advocate that the time has now arrived when ingapore might go the length of employing a professional golfer, whose services as a tutor would be at the disposal of anyone wishing to learn the game or to improve his proficiency in it. There are four golf clubs here, and between them a professional who was also a club maker. sculd well establish himself-in-Singapore and earn an income that would attract a good player of reliable character. We know the proposol has been made before, and that it was vetoed a year or so ago by the Singapore Gulf Club; but is not the subject worth re-opening and worthy of the consideration of a joint committee of the four local clubs?
